Are You Rheumatic?

Many Pangs That Pass for Rheumatism
Are Really Due to Weak Kidneys

Is it rheumatism?
Not every pain is.
Weak kidneys let uric acid collect.
Uric acid causes many queer pains.
In the thigh it's sciatica;
In the back, lumbago;
In the nerves, neuritis.
Gout, Gravel, Dropsy are uric troubles.
When you suspect the kidneys' use
Doan's Kidney Pills—
The home-recommended remedy.
Norway testimony is the best proof.
Ask your neighbor.

Read this Norway woman's story:
Mrs. F. L. Starbird, in rear Beals Hotel, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been an old standby with me for years. At times my kidneys don't act as they should or my back aches. I often have blinding dizzy spells and rheumatic pains when my finger joints seem to swell and are painful. I always use Doan's Kidney Pills from Noyes Drug Store at these times and they quickly relieve me and cure me of the attack. I can't say enough in praise of Doan's."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Starbird had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

THOU SHALT NOT KILL

Life Brown is gone, the neighbors say;
Well, some man goes 'most every day.
But food for the birds is in it.
For Life, who should have lingered here,
Kestrel's corner for a year
Is 'lyn' where the daisies grow.
Because a woman laid him low.

—gives a little cough
When asked what 'twas that took Life off,
"Acute gastritis," he replies,
But there's a lot in Doc's shrewd eyes,
Which says, he knows as well as I,
That Life's woman, foolishly,
Hastened the end of that poor man
By swatting him with the tryin' pan.

She didn't buff him on the head,
And yet, Ethel Brown is dead;
She didn't play the strong arm game,
But sure and deadly was her aim;
A salt-petroleum blow she dealt,
It took him just below the belt—
Though not so vital as the heart,
The stomach plays a useful part.

She never bore Life no ill will,
But you've all heard that love can kill,
Though some may doubt the fendish darts
That lurk in culinary arts.
Victims she fried three times a day,
Fryin' was the woman's way;
Goes, grease, and taller oil and fat—
'Twould give dyspepsia to a cat.

She never baked nor broiled nor stewed,
No matter what the kind of food;
Though fresh or canned, though green or dried,
That woman always served it fried.

Three fried potatoes and fried meat,
Fried eggs, fried hash, fried mush to eat,
Fried puddings—doughnuts sometimes called—
Until poor Life's stomach stalled.

And so the Baptist choir tonight
Is practicing "Lead Kindly Light,"
And Doc seems to be crying sharp,
You'd hear Life trying out his harp.

Then the make-up of the laws,
Which make a man a murderer,
To put a skull-and-cross-bones ban
On every cussed fryin' pan.

Oh gentle housewife, lend an ear
To this sad tale. Let wholesome fear
Of God's command your conscience fill,
He wisely said: "Thou shalt not kill."

IN THE HUNTING SEASON

Oh joy! The ground is white;
It must have snowed most all the night,
'Twill give the hunters all good cheer,
For now's the time to track the deer.

Reminds me of one year, snow came
I started out to hunt big game,
I wasn't long before I struck a track;
Unslung my rifle from my back.

And started off in swift pursuit,
For by all signs, I'd struck a beast,
But to the swift, belongs the race,
That deer, he set a merry pace.

He led me over hill and dale,
And through the meadow, swamp and swale,
And never once did I catch sight
Of that blame deer, 'till almost night.

When—! was peering through some brush
And creeping cautiously, when—! Hush!
Not half a dozen rods away,
I saw a spruce, a fine buck lay.

And such a shot! It seemed a shame,
But I didn't feel I was to blame,
I cooked my rifle sure and slow,
And the swift, belongs the show.

I took good aim and tried once more,
Before I looked my rifle o'er,
Fired, and the deer was in the air,
I'd tramped all day, without a deer.

C. R. MILLS, Fryeburg.

ENCOURAGEMENT

My neighbor, Jones he hems and wheezes,
His cough is shock I think and sneezes.
He thinks before the year is over
That he will sleep beneath the clover.

I will agree he's sick and lame,
His hide just covers up his frame,
His face is wan, his chest is thin,
He often says he's in a pin.

But I just laugh at what he said,
To get such ideas from his head,
I just smile at him you bet,
I'll say, "You live a long time yet."

I'll never be the heartless guy,
To say you're failing every day,
I'll hush and bow down to his woes,
And haunts him everywhere he goes.

I'll never worry him today,
With careless words that I might say,
I'll never cause a heavy heart,
For lack of forethought on my part.

I'll fix for him a lodge or shrine,
Beneath the hemlock or the pine,
Where he can live and rest with ease,
And hear the birds sing in the trees.

I'll heed this proverb when he's in a pinch,
We should not always speak the truth,
When he's gone and I'm in tears,
I'll know he's wrong and I'm in tears.

FREDERICK MARSHALL DAVIS.

WE'LL STAND UP FOR MAINE

You may wander away,
And hear people say,
"You are very welcome here."
I'll stand up for Maine.

But there's no greater welcome
In sunshine and rain,
Than what you give a long time yet,
In the good old State of Maine.

The State where the Pine Tree grows,
And the babbling brooklet flows,
Flowers and leaves come out in May,
Birds are singing all the day.

We'll stand up for Maine,
In sunshine and rain,
Maine's my native state,
May you never meet your fate.

We do our work and never shirk,
And we'll stand up for Maine
In sunshine and rain,
LOIS FARRINGTON, age 13 yrs.

Chronic Catarrh.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is

Grange Meeting

Bethel Grange held a regular meeting on December 1st. It was election of officers. A short business session was held and several applications were read.
Nearly all the officers were reelected; the list as follows:

expected to contribute and participate in the fun.

There have been added to Bethel Grange during the past year about fifty members. Brother George Haggood and wife will go as delegates to the State Grange, which will be held in Portland.
Bethel Grange is fortunate to have among its members so many talented speakers and musicians.

A daughter was born to S. S. Greenleaf and wife recently, also a little son

Mrs. Garry Morgan.

cently shopping for Christmas.

Wood is plenty and those having it are ready to sell and deliver promptly.
Seventeen houses closed makes quite a difference in the demand.

What is the trouble? Stock is not high in price but meats—one needs an acropole to reach the prices.

A Christmas letter is one of the most welcome reminders of the "Yuletide," that can be received. So when in doubt what to do, send a newsy, cheery letter and set the "joy bells ringing."

was a recent guest of Mrs. A. E. K.
Grover.

SOUTH PARIS

PARIS TOWN FARM

The report of the inspection by the state board of charities and corrections of the Paris town farm recommends that the living room of the inmates be repaired and made to look a little more home-like and the barn be put in good condition.

The report of the inspection says in part:

Perley G. Cox is superintendent of farm and Mrs. Cox is the matron. Their annual salary is $600. They have had two and one half years of experience which was obtained at this institution. The last thorough inspection was made in January 1921 by the Board of Overseers, such inspections being made annually.

There are two inmates at this institution, one woman over sixty and one man under sixty. The woman is a boarder and the man a pauper. Both are feeble minded. Neither require assistance in dressing. The largest and the smallest number present at any one time during the past year was two. Five can be comfortably cared for as at present equipped.

The woman has papers sent her and is given papers and magazines by the superintendent. Very little work is done by the inmates, and this has to be done under close supervision.

Inmates bathe once a week and have separate towels and drinking cups. Tramps are obtained at this institution to work for such accommodations. Superintendent says that he is seldom able to get more than two hours work done when supper, breakfast and lodging are given.

This farm is located on a slightly traveled road, not far from the main road. The houses are far apart. The two story house is built of wood. It has eleven rooms and the general state of repair is good. The stairs are easy for old people. There is a barn which is in need of repair.

The furniture and tableware are in fair condition. The dining tables are covered with dark oilcloth. The food looked good and there were many jars of good looking preserves in the cellar. There was also a large quantity of potatoes in the cellar. The two inmates eat together. The matron places a large quantity of vegetables, meat or soup on the table and allows inmates to help themselves, but she finds it necessary to eat the bread, butter, cookies, doughnuts, etc.

The beds were clean and apparently comfortable. No vermin were seen.

There is a good bath room, and an outside closet, both of which were free from odors. The bath room is not piped for hot water. The house is heated by stoves. There are no fire extinguishers. The source of water supply is a sparkling spring. The sink drain runs to a cess pool in the fields.

The inmates rooms are warmed by a stove in the living room, heat being going up through a register in the ceiling. Oil lamps are used for lighting.

The rooms have been papered and one has been whitened during the summer. Both Superintendent and matron would like the barn repaired.

REMEMBER that story BENJAMIN FRANKLIN told on himself? When he was a little boy he bought a tin whistle. Later he found out that the price he paid for it was a little too strong—he was the victim of a profiteer. Since FRANKLIN it has often been said, "He paid too dear for his whistle," when a person is too eager to get rid of his money and does not measure values. We have noticed that growing Bank Accounts are owned by people who "look around" a little when they want to buy whistles and things. Let's have more old fashioned thrift.

WHEN winter storms come, a touch of extra heat is often needed. On the side where the wind blows it's nearly always drafty and chilly. This winter—wherever the wind searches—put a Perfection Oil Heater in its path. It will keep the whole room up to "comfort-point" temperature.

The cost of this extra heat is small, and its use enables you to keep a slower fire in the main heating plant. In many instances the Perfection will soon pay for itself by the coal it saves.

ALBANY

Fernald's Mills

This community was shocked November 14 to hear that Christine Littlefield had swallowed an antiseptic tablet. A doctor was called, and everything possible done for her that skill and care could do, but of no avail, she passed away November 22. She was the youngest daughter of Fred R. Littlefield, Sept. 27, 1905. She was of a happy disposition and always ready for a good time, and all through the last week of suffering, not one murmur nor complaint. She received her education at the public school in this town and one year at Gould's Academy at Bethel. She leaves to mourn for her, the father, F. R. Littlefield, one sister, Mrs. Alton Paine, and one brother, Millard Littlefield. Grandparents, uncles and aunts. Her mother died several years ago. The funeral was held at the home November 25, the Rev. Mr. Little of Bethel speaking comforting words to the sorrowing ones. She was laid to rest beside her mother in the cemetery at North Waterford, the flowers were many and very beautiful.

Alton Paine and wife have gone to keep house in the late Chesley Fernald house, recently purchased by Fred Littlefield.

E. E. Barker is boarding at Charles Stevens'.

Thomas Logan is working in Greenwood where he worked last winter.

Merle Barker has been at home the past week on a vacation from the Cascade Mills where he has worked the past year.

School closed in the town house, Nov. 18, for one week's vacation, the last day the scholars gave an entertainment and the parents and friends were invited. They had a fine program and the little ones did their different parts finely. The scholars conveyed from this district who did not miss a day were Edith and Francena Wilbur and George Logan. Francena Wilbur got the prize as she did not miss in spelling for the term, which was pretty good for a little miss of eight years.

Little Harry Logan spent the day recently with Mrs. Flora McAllister.

Running the engine of a car to warm it up, in a small closed garage, is one of the most dangerous things that a man can do, according to Prof. Yandell Henderson of Yale University. It is almost as dangerous as blowing out the gas before going to bed, Prof. Henderson says.

"The exhaust gas from an engine and city illuminating gas both contain large proportions of carbon monoxide," says Prof. Henderson. "A small car produces as much carbon monoxide in a minute as a gas burner will flow in three or four hours, and a large car produces even more of this gas. These facts have been shown recently by Mr. A. C. Fieldner and his associates of the United States Bureau of Mines."

It is used to be that women wore few clothes about home but covered themselves with layers when they went out. Now they wear more clothes when they are at home than they do on the street.

A woman who loves you is much more dangerous than the woman who hates you.

KEEPING OF BEES

"What ought I to have and how should I make a start to keep a few colonies of bees?"

Of all the bee-keeping questions I receive this one seems to be the most important. Some years ago I asked myself, and is reply I got a miscellaneous assortment of information some of which cost me many dollars and much time. The most expensive advice that I received was from the party that I had the most faith in. But he, thinking that possibly I would not make a beekeeper tried to get me started at the least possible expense and as a result almost kept me from becoming one.

He told me to buy a colony or two of ordinary black bees for $4 or $5 per hive, take them home and study them, watching their work and handling them for a season. So I purchased two colonies. After I began studying them, and the hives that they were in, and began to find out some of the essentials of beekeeping for myself, I saw that I had taken the wrong advice. These bees were cross, as are nearly all of the domestic black bees. In getting them transferred into a movable frame standard hive they became sulky and did no work for the entire season, never making a pound of surplus honey. The queen in one of the colonies was old and worn out and she did not breed up enough young bees the first fall, so the colony almost all died out during the winter. These two colonies cost me $10. I put in an entire summer with them, did not get a pound of surplus honey, and I have always regretted that season wasted.

Now here is what I should have done. The $10 should have been sent to a breed of good pure-bred, three-band Italian bees for three or four frames of brood and a good tested queen, in a movable frame hive. In any average year they would have built up to three or four colonies by careful manipulation. I should have bought a crate of five standard hives, knoeled down and put them together. As the original colony built up to a strong thifty condition, I could easily have divided it.

The past spring I advised a neighbor to buy good, gentle, pure-bred colony with a young queen at the head of it and divide it up in four strong colonies to put into winter quarters. When his original colony had built up good and strong by June first, he had his new hives ready. Putting one of the new hives on a new stand in his little beeyard, he removed from the original all the original stand, all of the flight bees, one frame of brood and the queen.

He filled out the old hive with frames containing full sheets of foundation. He put one frame with a full sheet of foundation into a new hive with the nine frames of brood, comb and honey. The new colony which was queenless immediately proceeded to raise a queen. All the young bees and the nurse bees stayed in it. In a little over two weeks a large number of the young bees had developed into field workers or flight bees and the new queen had hatched and was shortly mated and at work laying.

The second week in July he divided both colonies again by the same method and now has four good strong colonies. The dry weather of August forced him to feed the colonies somewhat as the flow of nectar had almost ceased. Feeding a thin cane sugar syrup made of two quarts boiling water and one quart sugar, kept the queens busy and the work of drawing combs and other hive activities going on.

When the fall flow of nectar came on shortly following the first fall rains, all four colonies were built up sufficiently so that they could take advantage of it and fill their hives with honey to carry them thru the winter. He could have saved considerable time in making his divisions if he had purchased laying queens and given them to the new colonies rather than waiting for them to rear a queen. Beginners could do no better than imitate this plan.

My advice is to start with purebred bees because they are so much easier handled than common black bees, because they are disease resistant, breed up fast, work better in the hive, gather more nectar do not run all over the combs and hive when being handled. Do not buy any bees in box hives and attempt to transfer them because I have learned that transferring is a job only for an expert, one who has handled bees for several seasons. Bees purchased in hives from which the combs cannot be taken and examined are liable to be diseased. If you want to go faster than starting with on colony, buy two or three or five.

But I would not advise purchase of more than five colonies to start. After you have made the start the rest will come easy. Get in your car and visit some of the expert beekeepers in your section. If you have it in you to make a beekeeper you will absorb vast amounts of information. By all means purchase a copy of Dadant's revision of Langstroth's famous work, "The Hive and Honey Bee." There is no better work published and Dadant's revision is one that can be easily understood by the beginner.

Of course you should have a smoker, bees will long wrested gloves of drill or cotton to work in. After you have been at it a few months, however, you will be bolder and probably leave off the gloves. When the honey flow is on you may even go without a veil. Other tools and conveniences will suggest themselves as you advance.—A. B.

MID-SUMMER DAYS IN CASCO BAY

No. 8

One of the most delightful events of the summer season in Casco bay, was a sail among the islands. A run in a motor boat is too prosaic for one to get enthusiastic over. Its altogether too common. The most of the motor boats in the bay are noisy, "the chuggers" being positively disagreeable. But on one day while there is seen a noiseless boat, built for speed, that it is a pleasure to observe gliding swiftly through the water.

For real enjoyment on and about the bay there is nothing to compare to a few hours in a sail boat, when under the management of a master of the art of handling such a craft.

A small party of us, ladies and gentlemen, engaged the services of the owner of a sail boat to take us on a sail on the bay. He lived over on Peak's Island and was to come across for us on a certain day, when the weather was pleasant and a sea breeze blowing. The day set was not a good one for sailing, and the trip was given over, but the following day was an ideal one and the owner of the boat sailed over to the old landing of the Diamond Island Association but a short distance from our cottage. Our party was hastily collected and we were soon aboard. The tide was in which enabled the party to board the boat at the farther end of the landing. The boat had been newly painted and carried a clean new sail. Everything about the boat was "Spick and span"—a beauty of a water craft. As we pushed away from the landing the sail was swung to the breeze and the boat headed west for the Grand Trunk R. R. Transfer Station about three miles distant across the inner bay. We passed the little island owned by Governor Baxter, on which was a fine cottage among the trees. It was built by his father, Hon. J. P. Baxter and occupied by him during the latter part of his life as his favorite summer residence. He formerly had a cottage on Great Diamond, the Governor's island our skipper "tacked" and was running on the new course for a short distance, tacked again and stood directly down the bay. It was wonderful to see how the skipper managed to sail the boat especially when running almost into the teeth of the breeze. Fortunately the wind was not strong and no harm to the party was afflicted with sea sickness. We sailed by the lower end of Great Diamond on which is the Government Reservation and Fort McKinley and out into the track of the bay steamer and fishing boats. Down the bay we went with Lony Island between us and the open sea. There are three landings on this island; Ponce's, Doughty's and Cleave's. Near Doughty's is the cottage of the 1st, 10th, and 29th Me. Reg'ts. The highest point of the island is near Cleave's landing. The view from there of the open ocean is grand and beautiful. The view of the inner bay and westward to the White Mts. on a clear day is also very fine, especially in the autumn when the tops of these mountains are covered with the first snows.

Off Little Chebeague—everybody says "shebang"—one of the beauty spots of Casco bay, our skipper headed the boat for the open sea. In the distance are Little Green Island, Halfway Rock, and the Light House on Sequin farther to the east. Again the boat course was changed and steered for Portland Head Light. The breeze now was directly east and the little sail boat moved through the water as a gull skimming over the surface of the sea. All were carried away with the enthusiasm of the moment. Another boat was seen ahead and for a little time it was an anxious matter which was the faster boat, but it was soon seen that our boat was fast over hauling the other and it was not long before it caught up and passed. We felt like shouting but forebore as there had been no attempt at a race. Coming into the track of the Boston steamers, opposite Portland head light, the boat was turned towards the inner bay. The skipper was dashing over the reefs at Ram Island and near the head light. There was much tacking and changing course after this but at last the little craft brought us to the steamboat landing on Great Diamond, "safe and sound." All pronounced it one of the finest little sea trips of their lives.

Norway Friends in California
The following letter from Mrs. Cora B. Cummings will be of much interest to the Norway readers of the Advertiser: Redlands, California, Nov. 27, 1921.
"Dear Friends:
How long ago it seems and how far away those days at your lovely island, when we watched the ships go by and ate such chowder as never was eaten before or since! * * * It seems ages since we left Norway and of course our trip across the continent was interesting beyond description. Each day we saw new scenes and many strange things. The people were very kind and hospitable and seemed to enjoy our camping near their homes, even inviting us to occupy their yards, which we sometimes did, and often when the weather proved bad, asked us to share the warmth of their fires and partake with them of the morning meal. And so we went on day after day. I have written you I think from sacred Gettysburg and Antietam, and I recall Frederick City, Md., the home of Barbara Fritchie, who according to the poet Whittier waved her flag at Stonewall Jackson marching at the head of his troops and "Standing far out on the window sill, She shook it forth with a royal will, 'Twas this old flag that saved our head, But spare your country's flag," she said."
During a part of our journey we several times camped among the foot hills of the New Mexican Mts. and I sometimes felt that they might be concealing outlaws, but we saw none there. In Indiana however, just outside of Terre Haute, where we took a broad detour, we had seventeen hold-ups in 24 hours, but they looked so friendly and so courageous—especially the female part of it—that we were allowed to pass without serious hindrance. While at Winslow, Arizona we had lunch near the old rendezvous of that wicked old Indian chief, Geronimo, visited the many Indian stores and imagined what our lives must be living there. At Socorro, we visited a quaint old church built some hundred of years ago by the Indians and still in use. The whole building was crude, but the color beautiful, as the sun and winds of ages had made it the brown of old oak. At Datil we saw Indians weaving and had our lunch at Navajo Lodge.

"Go slow and see our town; Go fast and see our jail!"
"Thanksgiving here is not what it is in New England. The setting isn't right. Palms, posies and languidly waving pepper trees in temperature of 80 at noon, don't seem like Thanksgiving to me. New England but of course one can be thankful anywhere. We had a bountiful feast on that occasion off an 18lb. turkey with every thing that goes along with it including pumpkin pie made from a pie pumpkin sent me by Farces Post by Dr. Harry Jones. I picked armfuls of roses that morning and the house was like a garden.

We usually sit on the porch until about 4:30 when it gets chilly and we make fires inside in the fire places. Eucalyptus wood is burned—$26 a cord. A furnace and natural gas is used for cooking and electricity for lights. The people shiver and play it winter if the mercury happens to drop down to about 30 above zero while we are just comfortable. It's a beautiful country to look at and I'm glad we have seen it, but when it comes to real living, Maine is the only place in Uncle Sam's domain for me. Dora Kervin lectured here at a club meeting a few days ago. She is a smart, beautiful and talented young lady. She is at Los Angeles but frequently comes to Redlands. She stands high

We Are Proud of OUR EMPLOYEES

Central Maine Power Company is proud, for more reasons than it would be modest to enumerate, of its employees.

They are all human and hence liable to error; but taking them by and large, year in, year out, their equal would be hard to find for loyalty, for efficiency, and for willingness and ability to give service to the public day and night, summer and winter, storm or fair weather.

Not the least of our reasons for being proud of our employees is the success they have each year in selling the preferred stock which finances the development of Maine water powers.

Our employees—linemen, station operators, meter readers, clerks and all the rest—sold last year more than 2,000 shares of stock.

They expect to complete the selling, before this year ends, of 3,000 shares.

This method of selling by employees to customers adds, we feel sure, to the friendship between company and customers. It brings to employees and customers alike a realization of the need of plowing in Maine money here at home—the need for the development of Maine's great resource—water power.

Since the future of Maine means much to you and since you must know some Company employee through whom you can put some of your savings at work building up the old home state, why not place your order for preferred stock at once?

Any employee can take your order. The price is \$107.50 a share, the yield $6\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. net.

FARM BUREAU NOTES

Oxford County Farm Bureau has outlined for 1922 the biggest program ever attempted by any organization of farmers, and plans are now being made for carrying out this program.

The winter planning meetings will start with Rumford, December 27th and four days a week will be spent by County Agent Lovejoy and Anita Nicholson, Home Demonstration Agent in assisting the various communities in getting their work organized for the coming year. The planning meetings are open to non-members and everybody will be invited to attend.

Oxford County is said to have one of the best Farm Bureau executive committees in the state, and the whole hearted support of this committee and the community committees has enabled the Bureau to not only build up a big organization but to carry out an extensive program of work during the past nine months of active operations.

Among the many things accomplished by the Bureau are included the organization of two cow testing associations which furnish records on over 600 cows, and seventeen boys' and girls' clubs, the members of which made net profits of $1100.00 and received prizes amounting to over $300.00. In the silage corn project, also, figures furnished by the farmers themselves show additional profits of $4000.00 from the New York flint corn planted in comparison with other varieties.

The county is 95 per cent organized and the seventeen organized communities are now securing their membership for 1922. Already 433 members have been secured against a total of 264 at this time last year.

Paris leads in men members having 37 at the present time, while Buckfield has the larger women membership with 35 to its credit.

NORWAY LAKE

Several in the neighborhood have recently dressed off their hogs. David Flood had one that weighed 406 pounds and Nat Bennett's weighed 501 pounds.

Little John Morrison observed his sixth birthday anniversary Monday, by taking a birthday cake to school and sharing it with his schoolmates. The cake was decorated with candles and colored candies. The little folks seemed to enjoy the occasion very much.

Willard Buck has returned from a two weeks' visit with his daughter, Mrs. Arthur Buck, at Crockett's Ridge.

Clarence Dunham is suffering with a large boil on his neck and has been unable to work for several days.

Emerson Kilgore is some better, though confined to his bed.

Mrs. Webster Kilgore is better and is able to be about the house a little.

Willard Buck, Jr. of Sanford, returned to that place Monday, after spending a few days here at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Buck.

Helen Coy of the village is visiting at Willard Buck's.

Ruby Potter was ill and unable to attend school the latter part of last week and first of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Glover spent Tuesday at Claude Thomas' in Otisfield.

Ellie Swan of Norway was a Sunday guest at E. E. Witt's.

Gave Onlookers a Thrill

Mark Perry of Sweden, while driving through to South Paris one day last week, gave onlookers quite a thrill. When in front of E. E. Witt's store, the horse took fright and executed some fancy steps that brought the whole outfit perilously near the edge of the road on the lake side. Mr. Perry maintained his usual calm demeanor and finally the horse consented to resume his normal method of traveling and Mr. Perry proceeded on his way as though nothing unusual had happened.

"GOING UP"

Maine has become a million dollar State in automobile registrations, a goal which a few years ago seemed almost impossible to attain. The mark was passed when it was announced that the sum of $1,008,959.75 had been received in these fees, an increase over the same time and one-half months' period for 1920, of nearly $200,000. The interesting fact is that this increase has been obtained without any jump in rates. Next year with the new scale in effect there will be a notable advance, how much no one can tell at this time.

The one thing the motorists of Maine should demand in connection with these fees is that they be used exclusively for maintenance, and if there is any excess over the amount needed for this work, it should go toward new highway construction. First of all, however, maintenance is the one important thing the continuance of which should be guaranteed and it should mean maintenance of the best kind, with the increasing use of a tar or other binder on the gravel roads so they may be preserved and rendered dustless at the same time.—Express.

WHY TRADE AT HOME?

Many people ask that question, but very few trouble to seek the answer. Why should people patronize their home merchants?

Because it is a great saving of time, and time today represents money. Because the home merchant can only remain in business through the patronage of home people, and a town without merchants would be a sorry place in which to live.

Because the home merchant sells goods that do not have to be returned because of defects or inferiority of quality. It is the only way in which a local man can hold his trade.

Because the local merchant is not in the habit of charging excessive prices. You may at times be able to get the same article elsewhere for a little less money, but the quality will invariably be reduced in proportion to the price. The local merchant can not afford to sell "cheap" stuff. His customers would not tolerate it.

Because the prosperity of a community depends upon the amount of money in circulation in the community, and that is regulated mainly by the marketing of surplus products abroad and the keeping of as much as possible of the receipts at home.

Because a community that spends most of its money abroad for supplies soon finds that it has but little left for the purchase of additional supplies. It is so simple a child could understand it and what a child can comprehend should not go unheeded by adults. Think it over. Thinking may accomplish much good. It certainly will do no harm.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT
Whereas, after many years in the Harvest Field, our beloved and aged brother, Austin Bemis, was called to lay down the cycle and pass on to receive his eternal reward. Therefore be it

Resolved: That in the closing of this life on earth, Fryburg Grange No. 287, loses one of its oldest members, who was ever interested in its principals and purposes and active in its duties as long as health permitted.

Resolved: That while we miss him in our social circle, there are those whose hearts are sad in the home that he left, and to these we extend our sincere sympathy.

Resolved: That copies of these Resolutions be sent to his three children, once spread upon the records and one sent to the Norway Advertiser for publication; also that we drape our charter for thirty days.

The first sentences of imprisonment

Three of the scoundrelly profiteers and of taxation are abnormally high in Maine and should be reduced. That the burdens upon the people are too heavy.

Municipalities must economize as well as individuals. This is good sound sense.
A comparison of tax rates in Maine cities and towns with those of Massachusetts, show that Maine is way beyond the leading state of New England. There are many municipalities in our state whose tax rate is over four per cent. We can never get back to normal conditions in boosting tax rates and high prices.
The elections in 1920 throughout the country were decided on the ground that the high cost of living and the burdens of taxation should be lowered and brought back to normal conditions.

The people demand that these promises shall be kept. They also demand that those in charge of municipal affairs shall manage the affairs economically, in short as they do their own affairs.—Editorial Comment.

A Boston concern has made arrangements to sell Vermont milk in that city at a greatly reduced rate from November prices.

The tax rate of Lewiston and Auburn is only three per cent, Biddeford and Saco is three and two-tenths per cent.
But Belfast is four and two-fifths per cent, Old Town four and three-fifths, Mechanic Falls four and a half per cent, and New Portland as reported seven and one-fifth per cent. Whew! That is going some. When will such towns as New Portland get back to normal conditions?

"People are now generally elected to office not for their capabilities and fitness for the office they seek, but because they are hated less than the other fellows."—Citizen.

There is a law against profiteers in Maine but it does not seem to be generally known.

PHINEAS' PHILOSOPHY

"Speaking of the Russian Republic"
This "United We Stand Divided We Fall" Republic over to Russia makes me think of a Ford car cause they both have a crank at the head that starts all the Revolutionists.

A Ford has it on Messrs. Trotsky and Lenine, one way, cause a Ford can go most anywhere—they can pretty near make "Heaven on High". When St.
Peter calls the above Russian Syndicates
Directors to present themselves before Him for inspection he ought to tell them to turn about and proceed in "Lewy".

Now that Emma Goldman and Bill Hayward have joined the Republic they ought to have some Quartet if they can get Trotsky and Lenine to join em. I sigger that they would make a "hit" singin'
"My Country 'tis of thee". They might all want to sing Base in the mix up they might start another Revolution.

The whole gang ought ter have a Banner an a Slogan printed on it, to this Effect, "Run Russia to Ruin" but I suppose that if they really do accomplish this, given time, that they won't have any place they can call Home so they want to have, one place, to hang their Hat. Yours trooly, Phin.

"THAT LETTER NEVER CAME,"
IS EXPLAINED

An explanation of why in many cases
"that letter never came" is believed by Postmaster General Hays to have been found in the revelation, that an average of 70 pieces of mail is found daily in empty sacks and pouched sent to the mail bag repair shop in Washington.

About 8,000 sacks are received daily at the repair shop and of these something like one out of every 100 according to figures furnished Mr. Hays is found to contain a piece of mail, ranging from registered or special delivery letters to fourth class parcels. Considering there are 7,500,000 sacks and nearly 1,000,000 pouches used in the postal service about 2,500,000 of which on an average are stored for periods running from months to years, Mr. Hays believes a search will possibly bring to light much mail material unaccounted for.

The Postmaster General has sent out an order to all points where the sacks and pouches are stored for an immediate inspection and "shaking down" of each in order to ascertain if any contain mail.
Such mail if found will be specially marked and forwarded so that the addressee may know the cause of the delay. The order also provides that postmasters are to be held strictly responsible and must see that every sack in the future must be thoroughly inspected before it is cast aside.

In every community the promising young men are being watched by many employers. This is one crop that is never equal to the demand.

"A GOOD THING FREE"

The following question, and answer by Dr. W. A. Evans, published in the "How to Keep Well" department of the Boston Herald are so much to the point that

The Observer passes them along:

"I have a son who has a touch of con-sommption of the lungs," Mrs. G. writes.

"He has been to a doctor who has ordered him to stay all the time in bed and to keep his windows open. Yesterday came by us a lady from the health department. She says she must come and see does my boy do every time what the doctor orders. Do I get to let her in? Ain't it enough when I got a doctor? He charges plenty. I don't want to have a lady spying around what I do and what I give my boy for dinner.

Please tell me what should I do to keep his bed warm in cold weather? The lady is nice, but I don't want her bossing me around."

In reply—The lady being from the health department, has a right to come.

The law says that when any one from the health department comes at a reasonable hour you must let that person in and you must not in any way hinder that person in the discharge of his or her duties.

But why look at it that way? Forget that she has the right to come and that you cannot prevent her. Go around on the other side of the question and come in at the other door. She is a trained nurse. She has seen many hundrreds of cases of consumption. She spends all of her time seeing consumptives in the homes.

She knows more about how consump-tives live, how they should live, what they do that is wrong, and how to live right for themselves and their families than does anybody else. The next time she comes smile and invite her in. Tell her you are glad she has come and please come some more. Show her things. Ask her to tell you what you are doing wrong and how to do it right.

Have her show you what you want to know. Pump her. Learn all you can from her. Before she goes drink a cup of coffee with her and when she starts

IT TOOK THE JOY OUT OF HIS LIFE

Had Indigestion So Bad He Could Not Eat Anything Without Suffering Afterwards

"Tanlac has relieved me of a bad case of indigestion and rheumatism that had kept me in misery for five years," declares Charles Farwell, an employee of the Androscoggin and Kennebec Railroad living at 26 State St., Augusta, Me.

"I suffered from indigestion so bad it took all the joy out of life. I couldn't eat a thing without having terrible pains in the pit of my stomach and the gas pressed around my heart until I thought it would stop beating. At night I often woke up fighting for breath. I also suffered a great deal from rheumatism especially in my legs and back, and the awful pain together with the gas on my stomach, made it impossible for me to get very much rest at night."

"Tanlac seemed to be exactly what I needed for I felt better right from the start and soon had a fine appetite and could eat anything I wanted and never suffer a particle from pains in the stomach, and I haven't been troubled with gas since I finished my first bottle. All signs of rheumatism have left me and I haven't an ache or a pain of any sort in my body. I'm not a bit nervous now and sleep all night without ever waking up. Although I'm working unusually hard just now I feel fine all the time."

Tanlac is sold by A. L. Clark Drug Co., Norway; Stowell Bros., Locke's Mills; B. E. Pinkham, East Waterford; W. H. Brown, East Stoneham; Heald, Stearns & Kimball, Lovell; H. L. Hutchins Co., North Fryeburg; L. R. Rounds & Co., Waterford, and P. G. Barrett, Welchville, Me.
